By A Phile This is a very well written and photographed book on hiking some of Oregon's superb Geology. The western part of Oregon is greatly covered by forest so it is hard to see differentiation between strata and formations. In Eastern Oregon it is hotter, a lot less rain, and clear views of the geology. You will fall in love with Oregon if you buy this book. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A Tour Guide By Col H. G. Baker For those who loved Ellen Morris Bishop's outstanding and beautifully photographed "In Search of Ancient Oregon", this is a great companion book to take on the road and get physically engaged in the geology that surrounds us. The extra value is a tip on outstanding hiking areas of beauty - and, thanks to this book, a look at geology that you might miss otherwise. Highly recommended. See the world and great wild areas.

Fun, easy-to-use guides to hiking and understanding the dramatic geologic formations of these regions.

The intricate details of Oregon's geologic history in this travel guide make it the ultimate hiking companion for outdoor-lovers traveling through Oregon. (Geotimes) About the Author JOHN ELIOT ALLEN mapped and hiked Oregon's geology from the Wallowas to the coast. In addition to his distinguished career in teaching and research at Portland State University, he authored two acclaimed books about the Columbia River Gorge as well as Time Travel columns for the Oregonian. A longtime Portland resident, John passed away in 1996. ELLEN MORRIS BISHOP is the author of numerous books on geology and the outdoors, including Hiking Oregon's Geology. Dogs have accompanied her on virtually all the hikes she took preparing Hiking Oregon's Geology and doing geology field work. Her present dog, Meesha, is a certified Animal Assisted Therapy dog, providing canine companionship to Alzheimers patients, nursing home patients, and children in Dorenbecher Children's Hospital, Portland. Meesha also has her Basic Obedience Certificate and Basic Agility Certificate, and is a Dove Lewis Clinic blood donor dog. Ellen Bishop's previous work with dogs includes working with stock dogs to work cattle and sheep, and training a Newfoundland to be a certified Water Rescue Dog.
